Q2: How often do you attend Grace Lutheran Church in Andover, MN?

Q3: How would you define worship? What is it and why do we do it?

For me, worship is a means of coming together with a community of people to praise God, be thankful for what we have, offer prayers, give offering in thanksgiving, praising God through music/singing, receiving communion. It is a "total package" experience for me. I make it a priority to attend church weekly because otherwise my upcoming week isn't "right". I feel off-balance.

Q4: How would you define justice?

Initial thoughts: "with liberty and justice for all", compassion, sense of fairness, consequences if not.

Q5: Do worship and justice have any connection to each other? If so, what is the connection?

I don't think I've ever thought of the connection piece before, but see some relevance when I take into account the initial thoughts above.

Q1: what is your age?

23-50

Q2: How often do you attend Grace Lutheran Church in Andover, MN?

I don't, but I would like to answer the survey questions

Q3: How would you define worship? What is it and why do we do it?

Worship takes on many different forms. I can worship God by singing, by showing God's love to a stranger or by giving of my time and talents to God's kingdom. We do it because we "get" to do it as followers of Christ. The bible talks about many instances of worship in the OT and the NT.

Q4: How would you define justice?

God's justice is different than our justice. God's justice is perfectly rendered whereas our justice as human beings is often flawed and is arrived at due to our emotional connections to a particular injustice or what we have seen and heard in our life experiences.

Q5: Do worship and justice have any connection to each other? If so, what is the connection?

Yes, I think so. Worship is something that is put into our souls by God (whether we believe in him or not), some people worship celebrities while others of us worship the God who created us. But to truly be happy, we must worship God and God alone. Justice was also put into our souls by God, even the worst of the worst human being believes in some sort of justice or what one would call a "moral absolute". Most people know it is wrong to steal from someone else but often times, we see those who say "there are no moral absolutes, if it feels good to me, I will do it". If the person who said that really feels that way, let me smash their car windshield (just because it feels good to me) and see how quick the person with no belief in moral absolutes gets upset that I destroyed their property. So there again, we have someone who really doesn't believe in no moral absolutes unless something is done to them that they don't like or feel is unjust and then they believe in it. :)

Q3: How would you define worship? What is it and why do we do it?

Worship is an act of praising and showing your affection towards God. We worship because it defines us as Christians and who we are as people.

Q4: How would you define justice?

Justice is an act of giving a person what they deserve for the things that they have done. It is necessary for our society to have this to keep people safe and accountable.

Q5: Do worship and justice have any connection to each other? If so, what is the connection?

Worship is something that is from the heart, and that no one can judge you for. There is no connection between worship and justice.

Q3: How would you define worship? What is it and why do we do it?

Giving praise and honor. At a Grace we gather together to praise and honor God with song, words, prayer and taking communion together. I do it to feel connected to other people who also love God. In my life I am in contact with many people who do not believe as I do. They are wonderful people but I love coming together with others who feel as I do to worship God.

Q4: How would you define justice?

Fairness.

Q5: Do worship and justice have any connection to each other? If so, what is the connection?

Hmmm. In the reading of Amos, 5:24, "I want to see a flood of justice, a torrent of doing good". I would say that worship alone is not enough. I think that worship and good works are best.

Q4: How would you define justice?

I see justice as receiving punishment for wrong doing, and being rewarded for righteous behavior.

Q5: Do worship and justice have any connection to each other? If so, what is the connection?

We come to worship seeking God's justice, mercy and grace, knowing that God's justice is often not what we want or expect it to be. We want God to reward good and punish evil. But we understand that God's justice is not the same as man's justice.

Mercy and fairness in equal balance

Q5: Do worship and justice have any connection to each other? If so, what is the connection?

YES! I think that worship encourages humility, and humility is CRUCIAL for justice to exist. After all, justice often involves self-sacrifice for the good of others and the whole, and it's pretty tough to do that if you think you're the cat's meow!)

Q3: How would you define worship? What is it and why do we do it?

Worship is where we come together as a body of Christ and praise the name of God. Through song, prayer, and reflection on a sermon we are able to worship together and grow in our faith.

Q4: How would you define justice?

The equality and fulfillment of rights in our world.

Q5: Do worship and justice have any connection to each other? If so, what is the connection?

We can worship God by doing acts of justice or while doing acts of justice.

Q2: How often do you attend Grace Lutheran Church in Andover, MN?

Every few weeks

Q3: How would you define worship? What is it and why do we do it?

Difficult question, as it varies dependent on perspective. From mine, worship ought to be coming together to thank and praise God, and seek forgiveness and guidance.

Q4: How would you define justice?

Short answer: Justice ought to provide redress for those who have been wronged, and deter those who would harm others/violate the laws of society through some form of punishment.

Q5: Do worship and justice have any connection to each other? If so, what is the connection?

Short answer: All are guilty of transgressing the laws of God, through omission and commission, and are therefore subject to God's justice. Worshipers ought to seek forgiveness via grace conferred through Jesus Christ and sincerely repent their sins.

Q3: How would you define worship? What is it and why do we do it?

a gathering to learn about our relationship with God and to glorify God

Q4: How would you define justice?

In societal legal terms, it is rigidly defined by laws. But I would define justice as doing what is just, or right, not just legally but morally..and morally trumps legally if in conflict.

Q5: Do worship and justice have any connection to each other? If so, what is the connection?

I think there is a connection in that as part of worship (ie. to glorify God), we should act JUSTLY..that is to love our lives in justice. I suppose then that i could go the other way as well. In performing justice, we are living in worship.

Q2: How often do you attend Grace Lutheran Church in Andover, MN?

I don't, but I would like to answer the survey questions

Q3: How would you define worship? What is it and why do we do it?

Honoring or adoration
Worship is a service to show our thankfulness to God.
We do this to show our love and commitment to God.

Q4: How would you define justice?

The act of giving a deserved punishment or a reward.

Q5: Do worship and justice have any connection to each other? If so, what is the connection?

Yes
If we continue to show our love and faith in God, not only through worship but by showing our love to others, we will receive our just rewards here on earth and in heaven.

Q3: How would you define worship? What is it and why do we do it?

Learning about what god wants you to do to get the most out of life. Thanking God for what you have. A time to socialize. A time to think about life. A time to get answers to questions.

Q4: How would you define justice?

Right, good, synonym for excused (you are justified to do that)

Q5: Do worship and justice have any connection to each other? If so, what is the connection?

In worship, you listen to a pastor that tells you what to do to be happy in life. Justice is the act of making things right. When you worship you are making things right in your life.
